

New Passenger Car Registrations European Union + EFTA Countries

*Not adjusted for working days

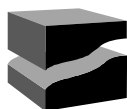

Weak year start in Germany contrasts with upswing markets in new EU Member States

2007 started with a mild increase (+1.1%) in the number of new passenger cars registered in Europe (EU23 + EFTA) reaching 1,285,104 units as compared with January 2006. While the EU15 market stagnated (+0.1%), new EU Member States registrations surged by +16.6%. Calendar effects, although limited across Europe, might have contributed to good performance of some of the markets having one extra working day [1].

The overall European result was affected by an expected decline in German new registrations (-10.5%) triggered by anticipated purchases ahead of the January 2007 sales tax increase. Four remaining biggest markets started the year on an upturn path: French registrations went up by +1.8%, Spanish by +2.7%, Italian by +3.5% and British by +5.2%. Also Sweden (+20.3%), Greece (+6.4%) and Ireland (+7.9%) benefited from an encouraging beginning of the year, while the rest of EU15 countries saw their registrations decrease. EFTA markets' performance (+14%) was positively influenced by a strong growth in Norway.

New EU Member States kept on growing, with the Baltic countries still leading the way (Latvia +95.3%, Lithuania +62.8%, Estonia +46.1%). Czech Republic (+17%), Hungary (+6.6%) and Poland (+21.6%) also positively contributed to the overall result. In absolute figures, half of the growth recorded by the new MS came from Poland, where additional 4,037 cars were registered as compared with January 2006. This upswing in purchases was fuelled by, amongst others, sales campaigns for 2006 cars and financial incentives (discounts, attractive credits, leasing). In contrast, Slovak and Slovenian markets saw their results decline (-6.3% and -1.3%) respectively.
