Dieter Zetsche elected 2010 ACEA President

Brussels, 4 December 2009 - The Board of Directors of ACEA, the Brussels-based European Automobile Manufacturers' Association, has elected Dieter Zetsche as its new President. Dieter Zetsche, Chairman of the Board of Daimler AG and Head of Mercedes-Benz Cars Division, will take over from Carlos Ghosn, Chairman and CEO of Renault, on 1 January 2010.

“The European automobile industry is confident to emerge stronger from the financial and economic crisis and has defined sustainable mobility a clear priority for the near as well as long-term future”, said Dieter Zetsche, following his election by the ACEA Board. “To this respect, we would welcome a positive and constructive outcome of Copenhagen”, added Zetsche, referring to the UN conference on climate change starting next week. “Our industry is a major contributor to finding and deploying solutions in this field. Copenhagen could send the important signal that partnership is key; partnership between industries, governments, academia and consumers.”

Apart from countering the extraordinary economic woes, the ACEA priorities for 2010 remain confined in four major categories: contributing to sustainable mobility, further progress in road safety, improving the regulatory framework, and enhancing competitiveness including progress in trade liberalisation. “Through our trade association ACEA, we will continue to seek a deep dialogue with all stakeholders at EU level”, said Zetsche. “We look forward to working closely with the newly elected European Parliament and the new European Commission in order to help maintain a thriving automobile industry in Europe and strengthen our global technology leadership.”

“Despite the challenges facing the entire industry, the European car manufacturers have focused on strengthening their competitiveness and investing in the technologies necessary for the future of mobility”, added Carlos Ghosn, reflecting on his term as President over the past twelve months. “In both areas, governments and regulators play a decisive role in setting a predictable and stable operating environment. Our industry is changing faster than at anytime in history, and a collaborative framework is vital for our mutual success.”

About Dieter Zetsche:
